

The Unsolved Robbery of the First National Bank of Westport

In the early hours of Wednesday, February 10th, 1880 the town was jolted awake by a _____ sound. The sound would turn out to be that of the safe at the _____ (adjective)
First National Bank being _____ _____! At the time, the bank was housed in _____ (adverb) (verb)
what we know today as National Hall. At _____, the downtown night watchman, (time of night)
_____, was attacked by a group of men and taken to wait behind a _____ (name) (type of building) near the bank. After what he thought to be about _____ hours, he was moved to a _____ (number) _____ inside the bank. After _____ hours work, the men decided to _____ the (place) (number) (adverb) vault door. Sadly, they used far too much _____! The explosion caused them to (noun)
panic and grab as much _____ as they could then make a run for the train.
(noun)

The first resident to the scene after the robbers departed, Mr. _____, noticed (proper noun)
that all of the plate glass windows had been blown out. The watchman was found in the closet with a _____ head wound. The cashier estimated that the robbers made (Adjective)
off with $_____. The identities of the robbers were never discovered and the money (amount of money)
they stole never recovered. The watchman was said to have kept the _____ as a (verb)
souvenir of his ordeal.